EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

AJ and JODI OCHOA, individually and the marital community composed thereof, TERRA GOLD FARMS, INC., a Washington corporation; A&C LAND COMPANY, LLC, a Washington limited liability company, and AJ OCHOA CORPORATION, a Washington corporation,

Plaintiffs,

v.

INDUSTRIAL VENTILATION, INC., an Idaho corporation,

Defendant.

NO. 2:18-CV-0393-TOR

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

BEFORE THE COURT is Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment.

(ECF No. 98). This matter was submitted for consideration without oral argument.

The Court has reviewed the record and files herein, and is fully informed. For the reasons discussed below, Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No.

1 98) is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part.

2 BACKGROUND

3 This case concerns Plaintiffs' purchase and use of Defendant's allegedly 4 defective vegetable storage facilities to store onion and potato crops, resulting in 5 several million dollars' worth of crop loss. ECF No. 1. On December 21, 2018, 6 Plaintiffs filed a Complaint against Defendant,¹ alleging the following causes of 7 action: (1) negligence, (2) product liability, (3) violation of Washington or Idaho's 8 Consumer Protection Act, (4) negligent and/or intentional misrepresentation, (5) 9 breach of fiduciary duty, (6) breach of contract, and (7) fraudulent concealment.
10 ECF No. 1 at 8-17, ¶¶ 35-79.

11 On April 21, 2020, Defendant filed a Motion for Partial Summary Judgment.
12 ECF No. 34. After the parties' full briefing, the Court granted the parties' 13 stipulated motion to vacate the hearing on the Motion for Partial Summary 14 Judgment and ordered that "[t]he Motion for Partial Summary Judgment may be 15 renewed by filing supplemental briefing and incorporating by reference the prior 16 briefing." ECF No. 47.

19 ¹ Defendant Teton West of Washington, LLC was dismissed on November 20, 20 2019. ECF No. 19.

1 On September 7, 2021, Defendant filed the present Motion for Summary 2 Judgment on the grounds that (1) Plaintiffs cannot prove the damage element of 3 any claim, (2) the independent duty doctrine bars Plaintiffs' claims for negligence, 4 product liability, misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty, and (3) Plaintiffs 5 AJ Ochoa, Jody Ochoa, and A&C Land Company lack standing. ECF No. 98 at 2.
6 The parties timely filed their respective response and reply, and Plaintiffs 7 incorporated the briefing in opposition to the previous Motion for Partial Summary 8 Judgment. See ECF Nos. 104, 109.

9 Except where noted, the following facts are not in dispute.

10 FACTS

11 Plaintiffs AJ and Jodi Ochoa are husband and wife who reside in Othello, 12 Washington. ECF No. 98-2 at 2, ¶ 1. AJ and Jodi Ochoa are the sole owners of 13 three Washington corporations: Plaintiffs Terra Gold Farms, A&C Land Company, 14 and AJ Ochoa Corporation. ECF No. 98-2 at 2, ¶ 2. Each of these corporations 15 serve different functions in the Ochoas' commercial crop farming operation: Terra 16 Gold Farms grows vegetables such as potatoes and onions, AJ Ochoa Corporation 17 builds and owns vegetable storage facilities, and A&C Land Company leases the 18 land to Terra Gold Farms and AJ Ochoa Corporation. ECF No. 98-2 at 2, ¶¶ 3-4.

19 Defendant IVI is an Idaho corporation with its principal place of business in 20 Nampa, Idaho. ECF No. 98-2 at 2, ¶ 6. IVI designs, manufactures, constructs,

1 assembles, installs, monitors, services, and repairs vegetable storage facilities and 2 their control modules. ECF No. 98-2 at 2, ¶ 7.

3 In early 2012, AJ Ochoa solicited bids from businesses for the construction
4 of large vegetable storage facilities, including from Defendant IVI. ECF No. 98-2 5 at 2, ¶¶ 6-7. In discussing the bid, the Ochoas' requested, and Defendant agreed to 6 provide a three-year warranty with no limitation on damages or remedies. ECF 7 No. 39 at 3, ¶ 3.

8 On March 30, 2012, AJ Ochoa orally approved IVI's "Final Bid" that 9 contained a written three-year warranty with no limitation on damages or remedies.
10 ECF No. 39 at 3, ¶ 3.

11 On April 6, 2012, AJ Ochoa signed the written contract with a "form 12 signature page" for one vegetable storage facility on behalf of AJ Ochoa 13 Corporation, which included the following relevant terms:

14 10. GOVERNING LAW: This agreement shall be governed by and 15 construed in accordance with the laws of Idaho.

16 11. LIMITED WARRANTY: Industrial Ventilation, Inc. warrants 17 ventilation systems and parts, when not misused or neglected, to be 18 free from defects in workmanship or materials for one year after 19 installation for the original purchaser. The company's obligation 20 under this warranty is limited to repairing or replacing during the warranty period any defective part. Customer's sole remedy for defective workmanship or materials shall be repair or replacement of the part, respectively.

21 12. DISCLAIMER: THIS WARRANTY SHALL BE IN LIEU OF 22 ANY OTHER WARRANTY, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, 23 INCLUDING ANY IMPLIED WARRANTY OR FITNESS FOR 24 PARTICULAR PURPOSE. INDUSTRIAL VENTILATION, INC.

1 EXPRESSLY DISCLAIMS ANY LIABILITY FOR ECONOMIC OR 2 CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES, INCLUDING LOSS OR PROFIT.

3 13. It is the responsibility of the user to ensure that the ventilation
4 system is fit for the intended application. Oral statements of the seller 5 do not, constitute warranties shall not be relied upon by the user, and 6 are not part of the contract for sale.

7 14: MERGER: This contract represents the entire agreement between 8 the parties. All prior representations, conversations, or negotiations 9 shall be deemed to be merged into this contract. No changes will 10 valid unless made in writing and signed by an agent of Industrial 11 Ventilation, Inc.

12 ECF Nos. 98-2 at 2-3, ¶ 8; 98-3 at 18; 39 at 3, ¶ 3. Plaintiffs contend AJ Ochoa 13 asked Alan Scott, an IVI employee, about the changed terms, including the one-14 year warranty, and Scott expressly told AJ Ochoa that the form terms did not 15 apply. ECF No. 39 at 3, ¶ 3. Following the agreement, IVI installed the 36,000 16 ton vegetable storage facility in 2012. ECF No. 98-2 at 3, ¶ 9.

17 In 2015, AJ Ochoa solicited IVI to build a second vegetable storage facility.

18 ECF No. 98-2 at 3, ¶ 10. On March 31, 2015, AJ Ochoa, on behalf of AJ Ochoa 19 Corporation, signed a written agreement with IVI for a nearly identical vegetable 20 storage facility, which contained the same aforementioned clauses on liability limitations, liability disclaimers, and merger clauses. ECF Nos. 98-2 at 3, ¶ 11; 98-3 at 23. IVI installed the second 36,000 ton vegetable storage facility in 2015.
ECF No. 98-2 at 3, ¶ 12. Plaintiffs contend the same three-year warranty without any limitation of liability or damages was orally agreed to for the second storage facility, but not included in the contract. ECF No. 39 at 3, ¶ 3.

1 Following the construction of the facilities, IVI provided warranty work for 2 three years without additional charge. ECF No. 39 at 3, ¶ 4.

3 IVI designed, installed, assembled, tested, and commissioned the storages, 4 and the systems and equipment sold to AJ Ochoa Corporation. ECF No. 39 at 4, ¶ 5 6. IVI agreed to multiple performance parameters and made express warranties for 6 the equipment and systems it sold to AJ Ochoa Corporation, including: (1) that the 7 equipment, sensors, controls, systems, and storages were “state of the art” and 8 designed, intended, and suitable for storage of potatoes and onions, (2) that the 9 equipment and systems would deliver a contractually specified cubic feet per 10 minute volume of airflow (CFM) per ton and as a whole, at a contractually 11 specified static air pressure (1.25 in. w.c.), (3) that the equipment, sensors, 12 controls, and systems would “precisely” monitor and control conditions in each 13 independent storage zone, (4) that the equipment, sensors, controls, and systems 14 could reach and hold temperatures within 0.1 degree of setpoint, (5) that each 15 storage would have four independent storage zones, and (6) that the systems would 16 save substantial electrical costs. ECF No. 39 at 3-4, ¶ 5.

17 Plaintiffs contend IVI breached its contractual performance specifications 18 and obligations, breached express warranties, breached the standard of care for the 19 selection, design, installation assembly, testing, and start up of the systems, 20 equipment and storages; the equipment, systems, and components manufactured

1 and sold by IVI were defective. ECF No. 39 at 4, ¶ 7. Plaintiffs contend that 2 repair or replacement of equipment, components, or parts of the storages or 3 systems sold and installed by IVI will not fix the major problems with the two 4 facilities' systems and equipment. ECF No. 39 at 5, ¶ 8.

5 DISCUSSION

6 A. Summary Judgment Standard

7 The Court may grant summary judgment in favor of a moving party who 8 demonstrates “that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and that the 9 movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). In ruling 10 on a motion for summary judgment, the court must only consider admissible 11 evidence. Orr v. Bank of America, NT & SA, 285 F.3d 764 (9th Cir. 2002). The 12 party moving for summary judgment bears the initial burden of showing the 13 absence of any genuine issues of material fact. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S.
14 317, 323 (1986). The burden then shifts to the non-moving party to identify 15 specific facts showing there is a genuine issue of material fact. See Anderson v.
16 Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 256 (1986). “The mere existence of a scintilla 17 of evidence in support of the plaintiff’s position will be insufficient; there must be 18 evidence on which the jury could reasonably find for the plaintiff.” Id. at 252.

19 For purposes of summary judgment, a fact is “material” if it might affect the 20 outcome of the suit under the governing law. Id. at 248. Further, a dispute is 1 “genuine” only where the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could find in 2 favor of the non-moving party. Id. The Court views the facts, and all rational 3 inferences therefrom, in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Scott v.

4 Harris, 550 U.S. 372, 378 (2007). Summary judgment will thus be granted 5 “against a party who fails to make a showing sufficient to establish the existence of 6 an element essential to that party’s case, and on which that party will bear the 7 burden of proof at trial.” Celotex, 477 U.S. at 322.

8 B. Stipulated Dismissal

9 As an initial matter, Plaintiffs agree to dismiss the breach of fiduciary claim 10 and dismiss Plaintiff A&C Land Company, LLC from this matter. ECF No. 104 at 11 3. Therefore, Plaintiffs’ breach of fiduciary claim and Plaintiff A&C Land 12 Company, LLC are dismissed.

13 C. Choice-of-Law Analysis

14 In a prior Order, the Court determined that Idaho substantive law applies to 15 Plaintiffs’ breach of contract claim. ECF No. 31 at 3. As demonstrated infra, the 16 parties apply Idaho law to the contract claims per the 2012 and 2015 contracts. See 17 ECF No. 98-3 at 18, 22. However, Defendant’s motion for summary judgment and 18 Plaintiffs’ response both apply Washington law to Plaintiffs’ tort claims. ECF No.
19 98 at 9-17; ECF No. 104 at 14-21. In reply, however, Defendant claims that Idaho 20 law governs, or at least bars, Plaintiffs’ tort claims. Compare ECF No. 98 at 9-17

1 with ECF No. 109 at 14-17. Additionally, the Court notes Plaintiffs alternatively 2 pled their Consumer Protection Act and Product Liability Act claims under both 3 Washington and Idaho law. See ECF No. 1 at 9, ¶ 42, at 11, ¶ 52. Therefore, the 4 Court must resolve which state's law will apply to Plaintiffs' tort claims.

5 "Claims arising in tort are not ordinarily controlled by a contractual choice 6 of law provision." Sutter Home Winery, Inc. v. Vintage Selections, Ltd., 971 F.2d 7 401, 407 (9th Cir. 1992) (citing Consolidated Data Terminals v. Applied Digital Data Systems, 708 F.2d 385, 390 n.3 (9th Cir. 1983)). "Rather, they are decided 9 according to the laws of the forum state." Id. A federal court sitting in diversity 10 applies the forum state's choice-of-law rules – here, Washington. Patton v. Cox, 11 276 F.3d 493, 495 (9th Cir. 2002).

12 Where parties dispute choice of law, there must be an actual conflict 13 between the laws or interests of Washington and the laws or interests of the other 14 state. FutureSelect Portfolio Mgmt., Inc. v. Tremont Grp. Holdings, Inc., 180
15 Wash. 2d 954, 967 (2014). Absent an actual conflict, Washington law
16 presumptively applies. Erwin v. Cotter Health Centers, 161 Wash. 2d 676, 692 17 (2007). If there is an actual conflict, Washington utilizes the "most significant 18 relationship test." FutureSelect, 180 Wash. 2d at 967. In determining which state 19 law applies to tort claims, courts will 1) "evaluate the contacts with each interested 20 jurisdiction" under Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 145 and any

1 section relevant to the causes of action² and 2) “evaluate the interests and policies
 2 of the potentially concerned jurisdictions” under Restatement § 6. Woodward v.
 3 Taylor, 184 Wash. 2d 911, 918-19 (2016).

4 Here, the parties’ choice of law provisions in the agreements do not govern 5 the tort claims. Sutter Home Winery, 971 F.2d at 407. The agreements do not 6 reference that Idaho law would govern “the relationship” nor claims “arising out 7 of” or “relating to” the parties’ agreements. See Magellan Real Est. Inv. Tr. v.
 8 Losch, 109 F. Supp. 2d 1144, 1158 (D. Ariz. 2000) (narrowly construing choice of 9 law provision where there were no terms expanding scope to all disputes). Rather, 10 the contracts states: “This agreement shall be governed by and construed in 11 accordance with the laws [of] Idaho.” ECF No. 98-3 at 18, 22. The sole term 12 “agreement” supports the Court’s conclusion that the contracts solely govern 13 claims sounding in contract. As to the tort claims, the parties do not engage in a 14 choice of law analysis but generally apply Washington law. See ECF Nos. 98, 15 104. Thus, neither party identified any actual conflict of law.³ In any event, the

 17² Here, the Restatement sections relevant to Plaintiffs’ tort claims are § 147 18 (injuries to tangible things) and § 148 (fraud and misrepresentation).

19³ The Court identifies one actual conflict relevant to this dispute: Washington 20 recognizes the independent duty doctrine, Idaho does not.

1 Court finds Washington law applies to Plaintiffs' tort claims under the relevant 2 Restatement factors, including that the injury occurred in Washington, the conduct 3 occurred in Washington, Plaintiffs are residences of Washington, and the 4 relationship is centered in Washington. Therefore, the Court applies Idaho law to 5 Plaintiffs' contract claims and Washington law to Plaintiffs' tort claims.

6 D. Applicable Law to Contracts

7 The parties dispute whether Idaho's common law or Uniform Commercial 8 Code ("UCC") applies to the contracts at issue. Defendant asserts Idaho's 9 common law applies on the grounds that the contracts, involving both goods and 10 services, were predominantly for "IVI's comprehensive services." ECF No. 98 at 11 4-5. Plaintiffs assert Idaho's UCC applies on the grounds that the contracts "deal 12 expressly and exclusively with the sale of identified pieces of equipment at a fixed 13 price – nothing else." ECF No. 104 at 6.

14 Under Idaho law, the UCC applies to contracts for the sale of goods and 15 Idaho common law applies to contracts for services. Fox v. Mountain W. Elec., 16 Inc., 137 Idaho 703, 709 (2002). Under the UCC, "goods" is defined as "all things 17 (including specially manufactured goods) which are movable at the time of 18 identification to the contract for sale" Idaho Code § 28-2-105(1). "Goods 19 must be both existing and identified before any interest in them can pass. Goods

1 which are not both existing and identified are ‘future’ goods.” Idaho Code § 28-2-2 105(2).

3 “If an agreement contains terms for the sale of goods and services, the 4 contract is a hybrid contract.” Silicon Int'l Ore, LLC v. Monsanto Co., 155 Idaho 5 538, 546 (2013) (citing Fox, 137 Idaho at 709). If a hybrid contract is at issue, 6 courts apply the “predominant factor” test, which considers the entire transaction 7 and “whether their predominant factor, their thrust, their purpose, reasonably 8 stated, is the rendition of service, with goods incidentally involved (e.g., contract 9 with artist for painting) or is a transaction of sale, with labor incidentally involved 10 (e.g., installation of a water heater in a bathroom).” Fox, 137 Idaho at 710 (citing 11 Pittsley v. Houser, 125 Idaho 820, 822 (Ct. App. 1994)). The issue of whether a 12 hybrid contract is primarily for goods or services is a question of law. See Pittsley, 13 125 Idaho at 822.

14 Here, the Court finds the contracts at issue are hybrid contracts where the 15 parties’ transactions were primarily for services, with the sale of goods incidentally 16 involved. Fox, 137 Idaho at 710. While the contracts primarily focus on listing 17 the equipment necessary for the facilities, the Court looks to the transaction as a 18 whole. Id. at 709. In 2012, Plaintiff solicited bids from a few companies to build 19 a large vegetable facility. ECF No. 98-2 at 2, ¶¶ 5-6. Defendant designs, 20 manufactures, constructs, assembles, installs, monitors, services, and repairs

1 vegetable storage facilities and their control modules. ECF No. 98-2 at 2, ¶ 7.
2 According to Plaintiff AJ Ochoa, Plaintiffs chose Defendant for the project in 2012 3 in part “[b]ased on representations by [Defendant] about its skill and expertise in 4 potato and onion storage systems.” ECF No. 40 at 2, ¶ 4. The primary focus for 5 the facilities appears to be for the specialized design and construction of the 6 equipment and system that Defendant offered. As result, under the predominant 7 factor test, the Court finds that common law applies to the 2012 and 2015 contracts 8 for the onion and potato storage facilities.

9 E. Contract Formation

10 The parties dispute what documents constitute the parties’ final and binding 11 contracts. Defendant asserts the 2012 and 2015 contracts, see ECF No. 98-3 at 16-12 23, are the final and binding agreements between the parties. ECF No. 98 at 5.
13 Plaintiffs assert the “deal was struck” in the 2012 final bid prior to AJ Ochoa 14 signing the contract (with the 2015 “deal” mirroring the same intent), so that the 15 final bid constitutes the final agreement of the parties on both the 2012 and 2015 16 facilities.⁴ ECF No. 104 at 9.

17
18
19 ⁴ Notably, the 2012 and 2015 agreements that Plaintiff argues are not binding 20 on the parties are the very same documents Plaintiff relies on to assert that the

1 The formation of a contract requires a meeting of the minds sufficient to 2 manifest mutual intent, where such manifestation is in the form of an offer and 3 acceptance. Fed. Nat. Mortg. Ass'n v. Hafer, 158 Idaho 694, 701-02 (2015). “A 4 contract must be complete, definite and certain in all its material terms, or contain 5 provisions which are capable in themselves of being reduced to certainty.”
6 Brunobuilt, Inc. v. Strata, Inc., 166 Idaho 208, 217 (2020) (internal citation 7 omitted). Whether a contract is formed is “largely a question of intent.” Id.
8 (internal citation omitted). Merger clauses demonstrate intent because they 9 “establish that the parties have agreed that the contract contains the parties’ entire 10 agreement.” Howard v. Perry, 141 Idaho 139, 142 (2005). In considering intent, 11 “the determination of the existence of a sufficient meeting of the minds to form a 12 contract is a question of fact to be determined by the trier of facts.” Id. (internal 13 citation omitted). However, “if the evidence is insufficient, undisputed or 14 conclusive as to the existence or terms of a contract, it should not be submitted to 15 the jury.” Shields & Co. v. Green, 100 Idaho 879, 882 (1980).

16 Generally, oral stipulations, agreements, and prior negotiations are presumed 17 to merge into a complete, integrated written contract, and evidence cannot be 18

19 UCC applies. Compare ECF No. 104 at 6 (citing ECF Nos. 35.1-35.3) with ECF
20 No. 104 at 9-10.

1 admitted for the purpose of contradicting the plain terms of the contract. Lindberg
2 v. Roseth, 137 Idaho 222, 228 (2002); Belk v. Martin, 136 Idaho 652, 657-58 3 (2001). “Under the parol evidence rule, if the written agreement is complete on its 4 face and unambiguous, no fraud or mistake being alleged, extrinsic evidence of 5 prior contemporaneous negotiations or conversations is not admissible to 6 contradict, vary, alter, add to or detract from the terms of the written contract.” 7 Lindberg, 137 Idaho at 228. A term is ambiguous “if it is reasonably subject to 8 conflicting interpretation and an ambiguous contract presents a question of fact 9 regarding the parties’ intent.” Walker v. Am. Cyanamid Co., 130 Idaho 824, 831 10 (1997). As to allegations of fraud, the rule “does not preclude admission of 11 evidence that one party to a contract made representations that fraudulently 12 induced the other party to enter into the contract.” Lindberg, 137 Idaho at 228.
13 Fraud “vitiates the specific terms of the agreement and can provide a basis for 14 demonstrating that the parties agreed to something apart from or in addition to the 15 written documents [T]he theory is that because of fraud, there was no 16 contract.” Budget Truck Sales, LLC v. Tilley, 163 Idaho 841, 847 (2018) (internal 17 citation and quotation marks omitted).

18 Plaintiff contends that “defects in workmanship” and “economic or 19 consequential loss” are ambiguous terms. ECF No. 38 at 15-17. The parties assert 20 that Idaho courts have not interpreted the term “faulty workmanship” and thus, turn

1 to Ninth Circuit law. See ECF No. 109 at 10. As to the term “workmanship”, the 2 Idaho Supreme Court found the noun has a plain, ordinary meaning: “1) the art or 3 skill of a workman[;] 2) the art or skill with which something is made or 4 executed[;] 3) the degree of art or skill exhibited in the finished product[;] 4) the 5 piece of work so produced.” Fisher v. Garrison Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 162 Idaho 6 149, 154 (2017). The term “economic loss” includes the “costs of repair and 7 replacement of defective property which is the subject of the transaction, as well as 8 commercial loss for inadequate value and consequent loss of profits or use.”

9 Ramerth v. Hart, 133 Idaho 194, 196 (1999) (internal citation omitted). The term 10 “consequential” damages or loss are the “direct consequences of the opposing 11 party’s breach and that the losses were within the reasonable contemplation of the 12 parties when they entered into their contract.” MH & H Implement, Inc. v. Massey- 13 Ferguson, Inc., 108 Idaho 879, 882 (Ct. App. 1985) (internal citation omitted).

14 Under Idaho law, the Court finds the terms unambiguous as used in the contract.
15 Following the plain, ordinary meaning of “workmanship”, the term covers defects 16 both in the process and the finished product. Fisher, 162 Idaho at 154. The 17 “economic or consequential loss” covers loss for that which is the subject of the 18 transaction and the losses that are within the reasonable contemplation of the 19 parties, i.e. the loss of potatoes and onions are a reasonably foreseeable

1 consequence of a defect in Defendant's design, workmanship and/or materials.

2 Ramerth, 133 Idaho at 196; MH & H Implement, 108 Idaho at 882.

3 However, viewing the disputed facts in light most favorable to Plaintiffs, 4 Plaintiffs have shown Defendant made intentional and/or negligent
5 misrepresentations that induced them to enter into the contracts. See ECF No. 104 6 at 20 (citing ECF 25 at 2, ¶¶ 3-5; ECF 40 at 2-8, ¶¶ 4, 6-9, 11-12, 14-18; ECF No.
7 104-2 at 2-3, ¶¶ 5-6). The claim for intentional misrepresentations, or fraud, 8 triggers an exception to the parol evidence rule. Such claims can use parol 9 evidence to show that there was no contract. Budget Truck Sales, 163 Idaho at 10 847. Therefore, Plaintiffs may invalidate the contracts by showing AJ Ochoa's 11 signature was procured through fraud and/or misrepresentation.

12 In sum, the 2012 and 2015 written contracts contain merger clauses and are 13 unambiguous as to their terms. However, Plaintiffs alleged fraud through 14 intentional misrepresentations that allow parol evidence to establish that the 15 contracts are voidable. As a result, there are material questions of fact as to 16 whether the 2012 and 2015 contracts are binding and enforceable. Therefore, 17 summary judgment on the applicable warranty period and disclaimers is not 18 appropriate.

19 F. Independent Duty Doctrine

20 Defendant moves for summary judgment on the grounds that four of

1 Plaintiffs' tort claims (negligence, products liability, negligent/intentional 2 misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty) are also barred under 3 Washington's Independent Duty Doctrine. ECF No. 98 at 9-17. Plaintiffs assert 4 that the doctrine is inapplicable under the facts of this case. ECF No. 104 at 14-21.

5 Under Washington's independent duty doctrine, “[a]n injury is remediable in 6 tort if it traces back to the breach of a tort duty arising independently of the terms 7 of the contract.” Eastwood v. Horse Harbor Found., Inc., 170 Wash. 2d 380, 389 8 (2010). Courts apply the doctrine to a “narrow class of cases, primarily limiting its 9 application to claims arising out of construction on real property and real property 10 sales.” Elcon Const., Inc. v. E. Washington Univ., 174 Wash. 2d 157, 165 (2012).
11 The Washington Supreme Court directed courts “not to apply the doctrine to tort 12 remedies ‘unless and until this court has, based upon considerations of common 13 sense, justice, policy and precedent, decided otherwise.’” Id. (quoting Eastwood, 14 170 Wash. 2d at 416). Whether a duty of care is owed and the scope of that duty is 15 a question of law; breach and causation are questions of fact for the jury.
16 Eastwood, 170 Wash. 2d at 395; Nichols v. Peterson NW, Inc., 197 Wash. App.
17 491, 505 (2016).

18 I. Negligence

19 An engineer has a common law duty of care that “extends to safety risks of 20 physical damage to the property on which the engineer works” and “to the persons

1 who hold a legally protected interest in the damaged property.” Affiliated FM. Ins.
2 Co. v. LTK Consulting Servs., Inc., 170 Wash. 2d 442, 456 (2010). To comply 3 with this duty, engineers must exercise “the degree of care, skill, and learning 4 expected of a reasonably prudent engineer in the state of Washington acting in the 5 same or similar circumstances.” Id. at 455. In applying Affiliated FM’s holding, 6 the Washington Court of Appeals found:

7 We hold that an engineer’s duty of care encompasses, inter alia, the 8 prevention of safety risks. Even where such safety risks do not cause 9 consequential damage to persons or property, the risk itself constitutes 10 an injury within the class of harm contemplated by a design professional’s duty of care. Where an engineer’s design services ultimately result in the construction of an unsound structure, the engineer has breached his duty of care.

11 Pointe at Westport Harbor Homeowners’ Ass’n v. Engineers Nw., Inc., P.S., 193
12 Wash. App. 695, 704-05 (2016) (internal citations omitted).

13 Here, in providing design and engineering services, Defendant has a 14 common law duty to prevent safety risks of physical damage to the property on 15 which the engineer works. Affiliated FM., 170 Wash. 2d at 456-58 (emphasis 16 added). Defendant’s engineer observed that one of the facility’s “wall was being 17 pushed out by air pressure” and stated “this doesn’t look good.” ECF No. 104-1 at 18 2-3, ¶ 1. Defendant does not dispute that the static pressure in the facilities at 19 times far exceeded the 1.75 dangerous pressure level that can in essence create a 20 “bomb” that causes catastrophic structural failure. Id. Defendant’s only response

1 is that “[e]ven if Plaintiffs could offer some theoretical evidence that the static 2 pressure levels were actually dangerous in these particular facilities, there would 3 be no causal connection between that danger and the alleged crop loss because that 4 danger never materialized.” ECF No. 109 at 15. To the contrary, Defendant has 5 the duty to prevent the risk of creating an unsound structure and to prevent a safety 6 risk of physical damage to the property. Pointe, 193 Wash. App. at 704-05. Any 7 issues of breach and causation are issues of fact for the jury. In finding an existing 8 duty sounding in tort, the Court finds that Plaintiffs’ negligence claim is not barred 9 by the independent duty doctrine.

10 2. Product Liability

11 The Washington Product Liability Act (“WPLA”) is the exclusive remedy 12 for product liability claims. Wash. State Physicians Ins. Exch. & Ass’n v. Fisons 13 Corp., 122 Wash. 2d 299, 322-23 (1993). “[A] product manufacturer has a tort 14 duty to avoid product designs and construction that are unreasonably dangerous.” 15 Eastwood, 170 Wash. 2d at 395 (citing RCW 7.72.030). A “product” is defined as 16 “any object possessing intrinsic value, capable of delivery either as an assembled 17 whole or as a component part or parts, and produced for introduction into trade or 18 commerce.” RCW 7.72.010(3). A “manufacturer” “includes a product seller who 19 designs, produces, makes, fabricates, constructs, or remanufactures the relevant 20 product or component part of a product before its sale to a user or consumer.”

1 RCW 7.72.010(2). Similar to the claim for negligence, a breach of tort duty will 2 occur if the “product defect results in a personal injury or damage to other 3 property.” Eastwood, 170 Wash. 2d at 396. If the injury is only to the product 4 itself, “WPLA tort duties are implicated if a hazardous product exposes a person or 5 property to an unreasonable risk of harm such that the safety interests of the 6 WPLA are implicated.” Id.

7 For the same reasons Plaintiffs’ negligence claims is not barred by the 8 independent duty doctrine, Plaintiffs’ WPLA claim is not barred. See supra at 22-9 23. The Court finds that Defendant, to the extent it is classified as a “product 10 manufacturer,”⁵ has an independent tort duty to avoid product designs and 11 construction that are unreasonably dangerous. Eastwood, 170 Wash. 2d at 395.
12 Therefore, Plaintiffs’ WPLA claim is not barred by the independent duty doctrine.

13 3. Misrepresentation

14 The Washington Supreme Court held that the independent duty doctrine

15 _____
16 ⁵ Defendant does not move for summary judgment on the merits of Plaintiffs’ 17 WPLA claim, including whether it is a “product manufacturer.” Thus, the Court 18 expresses no view as to the claim’s success or legal effect, including preemption of 19 other tort claims. See RCW 7.72.010(2)-(4); Bylsma v. Burger King Corp., 176 20 Wash. 2d 555, 559 (2013).

1 does not generally bar claims for negligent misrepresentation and fraud. Donatelli
2 v. D.R. Strong Consulting Engineers, Inc., 179 Wash. 2d 84, 98 (2013); Eastwood, 3 170 Wash. 2d at 388. There are circumstances where “a negligent 4 misrepresentation claim may be viable even when only economic damages are at 5 stake and the parties contracted against potential economic liability.” Donatelli, 6 179 Wash. 2d at 95. Such circumstances include the duty to avoid 7 misrepresentations that induce a party to enter into a contract, a duty which arises 8 independent of the contract. Id.

9 Here, Plaintiffs asserts that Defendant made misrepresentations that induced 10 them to enter into the contracts. See ECF No. 104 at 20 (citing ECF 25 at 2, ¶¶ 3-11 5; ECF 40 at 2-8, ¶¶ 4, 6-9, 11-12, 14-18; ECF No. 104-2 at 2-3, ¶¶ 5-6). To the 12 extent these allegations are made, Defendant has an independent duty to avoid 13 misrepresentations that induced AJ Ochoa to sign the contracts on behalf of AJ 14 Ochoa Corporation. As a result, the Court finds that Plaintiffs’ misrepresentation 15 claim is not barred by the independent duty doctrine.

16 G. Tort Claims Not Briefed

17 Defendant did not move for summary judgment on Plaintiffs’ fraudulent 18 concealment and Consumer Protection Act (“CPA”) claims. See ECF No. 1 at 16; 19 ECF No. 98. As to the CPA claim, in its’ reply, Defendant merely argues “the 20 parties specifically designated Idaho law to govern the contracts. Thus, whether

1 public policy voids the limited warranty terms as to Plaintiffs' CPA claim is a 2 matter of Idaho's public policy, not Washington's. Plaintiffs cite no Idaho 3 authority." ECF No. 109 at 14-15.

4 The Court declines to address claims Defendant failed to raise in moving for 5 summary judgment and arguments raised for the first time in the reply brief.
6 Zamani v. Carnes, 491 F.3d 990, 997 (9th Cir. 2007). While not briefed by the 7 parties, these claims sound in tort and do not appear to be barred by the 8 independent duty doctrine. Therefore, summary judgment on these claims is not 9 appropriate.

10 H. Standing

11 Defendant moves for summary judgment on the grounds that AJ Ochoa, Jodi 12 Ochoa and A&C Land Company lack standing. ECF No. 98 at 2-3. Plaintiffs 13 assert that Terra Gold, AJ Ochoa Corporation, and the AJ and Jodi Ochoa 14 individually have standing to sue but agree that A&C Land Company may be 15 dismissed. ECF No. 104 at 21.

16 The Ninth Circuit found "the characterization of an action as derivative or 17 direct is a question of state law." Sax v. World Wide Press, Inc., 809 F.2d 610, 613 18 (9th Cir. 1987) (internal citation omitted). Once the characterization is made under 19 state law, the applicable federal law governs the procedural rules. Id. (applying 20 Rule 23.1 to derivative actions). Under Washington law, shareholders are

1 generally not allowed to bring an individual direct cause of action for an injury 2 inflicted upon the corporation or its property by a third party. Sabey v. Howard
3 Johnson & Co., 101 Wash. App. 575, 584 (2000). There are two exceptions: (1) 4 where there is a special duty between the shareholder and third party and (2) where 5 the shareholder suffered an injury separate and distinct from the harm suffered by 6 other shareholders. Id. at 584-85.

7 Here, Plaintiffs are directly suing in their individual capacity, and therefore 8 must demonstrate application of a special duty or separate and distinct harm. See 9 id. Plaintiffs assert the individual Ochoas have standing to bring the 10 misrepresentation and CPA claims. ECF No. 104 at 21. As to the CPA claim, AJ 11 Ochoa Corporation, as a party to the contract, claims injury to itself and qualifies 12 as a “person” under the CPA. RCW 19.86.010(1). As to the misrepresentation 13 claim, Plaintiffs are seeking economic injury for the claims that led to the contract 14 and construction of the 2012 and 2015 facilities. The individual Ochoas lack “the 15 type of personal injury sufficient to confer standing for a direct suit and is not the 16 party entitled to the ‘fruits of the action.’” Goldberg Fam. Inv. Corp. v. Quigg, 17 184 Wash. App. 1019 (2014). As a result, Plaintiffs AJ and Jodi Ochoa do not 18 have standing to bring a direct action. Neither party has briefed whether Terra 19 Gold has any legal interest to have standing to sue. However, Defendant concedes 20 that “[t]he only two parties to contract with IVI were AJ Ochoa Corporation and

1 Terra Gold Farms. ECF No. 98 at 2. Since Terra Gold Farms grows the potatoes 2 and onions, it appears it has suffered the economic loss from spoilation.

3 ACCORDINGLY, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

4 1. Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 98) is 5 GRANTED in part and DENIED in part.

6 2. Plaintiffs' breach of fiduciary duty claim is DISMISSED.

7 3. Plaintiffs A&C Land Company, and AJ and Jodi Ochoa are 8 DISMISSED. The Clerk shall adjust the docket accordingly.

9 The District Court Executive is directed to enter this Order and furnish 10 copies to counsel.
